The article reveals the topic of why you need to learn English in modern society. Knowledge of the English language is a requirement of time, a necessary criterion for obtaining a prestigious job, for the development of a successful career. This is the language of international communication, without the knowledge of which it is not only impossible to do business, but also to travel to different countries.

Key words: prestigious job, successful career, international communication, business, modern society.*

Learning foreign languages broadens our horizons, people become more educated. In my opinion, languages are especially important for those who work in various fields of science and technology, politics. A foreign language helps you to learn your native language better. People who know many languages are polyglots.

Today, English has become an international language. About 300 million people speak it as their native language.

I think in our time, it is very important to know foreign languages. Some people learn languages because they need them for work, others travel abroad, and for others it's just a hobby. People want to know languages, write to pen pals or chat with people from different countries, meet more new people and make friends. In addition, they want to read the original books of famous writers, read newspapers and magazines. This helps them learn more about different events, people's lives, customs and traditions.

Namely, there are several reasons why exactly English:

1. English is one of the most widely spoken in the world

Why is English so important? One in five people in the world speaks or at least understands English. There are 400 million native speakers of this language on the planet, and English is the official or one of the main languages of communication in more than 50 countries.

2. English opens up new possibilities for you

Another important reason to learn English is that it increases your chances of getting a good job in a multinational company or starting work abroad. English is the language of business, which is why it is so important that employees can speak English when communicating with colleagues from other countries and foreign clients. In short, learning English will help you build your career.

3. English opens your way to the best universities in the world

Where do you want to study? Have you ever thought of going to Harvard, Yale, Princeton or Stanford? What about the prestigious English universities, Cambridge and Oxford? Even if admission to one of these universities is not part of your plans, English is spoken in many countries, so there are thousands of institutions offering programs in English. If you speak English, there are many possibilities open to you.

4. Some of the greatest works of world literature are written in English

Maybe you've always wanted to read the books of great English writers in the original? Learn English online and apply your acquired language skills to read modern classics: J.K. Rowling's Harry Potter series, Stephen King's novels or Lee Child's latest thriller. With each new book you read, you will develop your English skills and be able to go to the old masters of the word: Charles Dickens, Jane Austen or Henry James, and read their works in the original language. Start learning now, and very soon you will be able to read!

5. English improves memory and helps keep the brain in good shape

Another, perhaps somewhat unexpected, reason to learn English is a good memory! According to research, fluency in two languages (and just the process of learning a foreign language) can protect the brain from negative age-related changes. Some types of senile dementia in people who speak at least two languages are diagnosed up to five years later than those who speak only one language.

Why do teenagers need English?

In adolescence, learning English is necessary, first of all, as a stage of preparation for entering a university, choosing a profession and self-affirmation. And there is no need to talk about creative possibilities with knowledge of a foreign language.

And as a conclusion, we can say that personally I think that knowing foreign languages today is absolutely necessary for every educated person, for every good specialist. Therefore, let's learn foreign languages and discover many interesting things in our life with them!
